Lobbying disclosure policy

— GE Aerospace conducts lobbying activities in compliance with applicable laws and regulations governing such activities.

GE Aerospace employees engage with public officials at all levels of government—local, state, and federal. Employees educate officials on our Company's operations, emerging technologies and markets, as well as our views on public policy issues. All advocacy done by our employees on pending U.S. legislation is included in our Lobbying Disclosure Act (LDA) filings.

GE Aerospace conducts lobbying activities in compliance with applicable laws and regulations governing such activities. In the U.S., certain communications with federal, state and/or local government officials or employees may be reportable as lobbying communications included in GE Aerospace's LDA reports and/or state or local lobbying disclosure reports. Certain countries outside the U.S. may also require disclosure of lobbying activities.

Before engaging in lobbying activities, employees are required to obtain prior approval from GE Aerospace's Head of Government Relations or his or her designee. GE Aerospace regularly trains employees on the types of activities and communications that constitute reportable lobbying activities. Prior approval from GE Aerospace's Head of Government Relations is required before GE Aerospace may retain an outside entity to engage in lobbying activities.

As part of its oversight role in public policy and corporate social responsibility, the Governance and Public Affairs Committee of the Board of Directors receives and semiannually reviews reports on the Company's lobbying expenses. GE Aerospace uses the Internal Revenue Code method to detail its lobbying expenses in its federal Form LD-2 lobbying report filed each calendar quarter. Under this method, expenses related to state and/or local legislative lobbying in all 50 states are included in GE Aerospace's total lobbying expense reported each quarter and reviewed semiannually by the Committee. In limited circumstances, when an issue is of particular strategic importance, the Company may use advertisements or other public communications to urge support for specific legislation or public policy. Grassroots lobbying expenses also are included in our LDA filings.
